NOTES OF "U"

The juniors of the university did not take their geology trip to Farmington yesterday, as they had planned, on account of the inclement weather. This will be taken Thursday, and Friday will be spent at the head of Dry canyon.

The seniors returned from Park City Tussday, where they have been spending the past week studying the geology, min-ing and milling processes of the camp. The boys had a very interesting trip and much good was accomplished. They will leave Thursday morning for Castle Gato and Sunviside. and Sunnyside,

The medics will hold an important meeting Wednesday noon to discuss the condition of the society and the school. They also wish to investigate their stand-ing among other leading medical schools of the country.

Judge Armstrong delivered the second of his lectures on "Probate Practice" Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the City and County building before the Barristers ciub and the law students. The talk was very interesting and full of many useful suggestions for the embryo petitioner for furtice.

The students of the university will hold an important meeting at 11:20 today to discuss and pass upon several amendments to the constitution and to install the new officers recently elected. The classes will be postponed one hour on this account. A yell practice and rousing track meeting for the Stanford track meeting will follow the business. Nothing is being left undone that will help to win victory for the "U" next Saturday.

The university will have a bureau of information and personal aid for the students next fall when school opens. Steps were taken Tuesday by the executive committee of the Associated Students for the organizing of this club. This need has long been keenly felt but it has been left for the present holders to start the matter. Several committees will be appointed to have charge of the various departments, such as room and board, classes, programmes faculty members, and get acquainted with one another. They will also aid new students who are compelled to work their way through college to secure a position. A strictly reliable person will be in charge and who will act as an agent for the business man and the student. No commission will be charged, either. This will aid materially in making it more pleasant for the new students upon their arrival and during the first few days of school when everything goes dead wrong.

WILLIAMS BECOMES VIOLENTLY INSANE

Deputy Marshal Caldwell Called in to Protect Family From Violence.

Bert Williams, a butcher, living in the eastern part of Murray, who was discharged from the State mental hospital at Provo about a year ago, became violently insane again early Tuesday evening, and after breaking up the dishes and furniture, attacked his wife, choking and beating her, and three little children, ranging in ages from three to nine years, and drove them from the house.

Terrorized, Mis. Williams notified Deputy Marshal Caldwell of Murray, who has been called to the Williams home on an average of three or four times a week recently to quiet Williams's ravings, and protect his family from his violence. The deputy soon subdued Williams's ravings, and protect his family from his violence. The deputy soon subdued Williams and ledged him in the Murray jail until Deputy Sheriffs Emery and Sperry arrived. Then the crazy man was brought in to Salt Lake City and placed in a padded cell here. He soon became quiet.

After three or four months' treatment at the State mental hospital Williams was discharged about a year ago, considerably improved. His mental affliction soon returned, however, and recently he grew more violent rapidly. A few days ago he beat and choked his wife and knocked his youngest child, three years old, down with a plece of from. It was feared that in one of his violent spells he might kill a member of his family, and to remove this possibility he was lodged in jall. A sanity commission now will sit on his case, and his return to the State mental hospital is probable.

The front part of Williams's brain appears to be affected. In his violent spells he suffers intense pain in the forehead. For five or six years he was a butcher for his brother, and it is believed that he worried over his brother's business affairs until his mind became unbalanced. He is about thirty-five years of age.

BERT LEVY TELLS GOOD STORY ON MARTIN BECK, MANAGER

Speaking of a recent meeting with Mr. Beck, Mr. Levy said:

"A few weeks ago I stood talking with him on State street, Chicago. Close by was a 5-cent moving picture show, and the people were pouring in from the sidewalk. I was talking to Back about history, automobiles, vaudeville and a hundred other things. Suddenly we started an argument about the Talmud. Beck is a classical talker and a delightful expounder of the bible—Jewish and Gentile. He was tracing for me, in a learned way, the story of Judea, skipping from centary to century and his knowledge of the history of our people astounded me. He stopped in the middle of an eloquent quotation from the Talmud to remark: 'Say, that guy did not put the last two tickets in the box.'

"All the while Beck's mind was that gay did not put the last two tickets in the box."

'All the while Beck's mind was wandering down the centuries he had his eve on the prosanc individual who was taking the tickets from the people entering the 5-cent show, and with his keen business instinct he was involuntarily 'counting the house."

'This is the character of Martin Beck in a nutshell. A man of unique intellectual attainment, whose classic training is strangely intermingled with a cold-blooded commercial discipling which has made him beloved as well as feared.

'Beck sprung from a very modest origin and his early life was spent in many precarious occupations.

'A characteristic story is told of him. A certain low consedian, one of the old school, waited on Beck and asked for

There is no other organization on earth today which has the hardihood to or which would send among young people of their church, characters like these, to mould thought in the name of religion. It is the veriest rot to argue that this organization has given up polygamy. Not only the first presidency, and the twelve apostles a Salt Lake, but the presidents of stakes, counselors, bishops, teachers and missionaries here in Idaho are saturated with polygamy. It is so interwoven with their every day life as to prove the statement that the Mormon church is a polygamist organization from center to circumference. There is nothing to indicate that there is any intention of abandoning polygamy. is any intention of abandoning polygis any intention of abandoning polyg-amy, all indications tend to prove con-clusively that the church will again pro-claim the divinity of this awful prac-tice, as soon as they gain sufficient po-litical power to protect them.

CHARLES HOLMES IS ACCUSED OF STEALING

He Is Charged With Looting the Home of Charles Henderson.

Detectives Sheats and Wilson, Thursday night, agreated and lodged in the city iail, on a charge of burglary, Charles Holmes, 50 years old, who has a jall record in Salt Lake City.

Holmes is charged with breaking into Charles Henderson's residence at 454 South Main street, in the absence of the family, Tuesday afternoon, and carrying away a lady's gold watch and chain, a bracelet, several silk waists and underwear and four or five dresses, valued at $100. In fact, Holmes almost devastated Mrs. Henderson's wardrobe.

He was captured in a second-hand shop at 230 South State street, where he was trying to dispose of the stolen goods. He offered the loot for sale at a ridiculously low figure, which aroused the suspicions of the owner of the second-hand store, and the police were notified. Detectives Sheats and Wilson were detailed on the case, and while on their way to the store the proprietor kept Holmes, who was hadly intoxicated, in conversation, and thus detained him until they arrived.

Earlier in the day a report of the theft of the stuff from the Henderson residence, with a description of it, had been received at police headquarters, and the detectives immediately identified the articles Holmes had in his possession and was offering for sale as the stolen stuff, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson were notified and identified the goods in Holmes's possession as their property beyond doubt.

How Holmes got into the Henderson residence is unknown, but it is thought that one of the doors or windows was left unsecured. He finished a jail sentence for stealing bross a short time ago, and has attracted the attention of the police two or three times previously.

A private safe may be rented in the fire and burglar-proof vaults of the Salt Lake Security and Trust company, 32-34 Main street, $3.50 per year.
